OFFICERS PROBE WEST LAFAYETTE ALLEGED MURDER

Mother Broke to Hospital In Coshocton—Infant's Body Taken to Office of State Chemist, Columbus

Upon the result of the analysis by the state chemist at Columbus of the contents of the stomach of Donald Settles, Junior, five-day-old infant of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Settles, West Lafayette, will depend to some extent the action of Coshocton-co officials in connection with the murder mystery surrounding the death of the infant Monday night.

The body was taken to Columbus Wednesday morning, by Undertaker Rehard, accompanied by Coroner Edmund Cone.

There is practically no doubt that the child was poisoned and the purpose of the chemical analysis is to determine the kind of poison. It is believed that the child was given lysol, as a bottle partially full of lysol was found on the bed where Mrs. Settles and her baby lay. Dr. Wilmer Hammond, left a bottle of lysol for disinfectant purposes after the child was born and later Donald Settles got another bottle of lysol from the doctor to be used by the nurse, Miss Mary Rager, 125 Walnut-st., Coshocton.

Miss Rager returned to Coshocton Saturday evening and the presumption is that lysol was given the child some time Saturday night as its mouth was badly discolored when Dr. Hammond arrived Sunday morning. He at once suspected that the child had been poisoned and administered an antidote, but it was too late to save the infant's life.

Mrs. Settles, who is suspected of administering poison to her child, was brought to the Coshocton city hospital Tuesday afternoon. Her husband accompanied her. She is able to walk and it is thought that she will soon be able to be out. She will probably be placed under arrest after the matter has been more thoroughly investigated and held for the grand jury which meets in January. Whether or not her husband is also arrested will depend upon future developments. The fact that he and his wife both seem to still think a great deal of each other leads to the supposition that they may have jointly planned to do away with the child, although suspicion points a little more strongly to the mother.

Prosecutor Leech, Coroner Cone, Sheriff Cullison and Deputy Sheriff Darr in their investigation at West Lafayette Tuesday questioned all who seemed to have any knowledge of the affair. They gleaned from Mrs. Settles bits of past history which seem to have an important bearing upon the murder mystery. She told them, it is said, that shortly after last Christmas, while she was living at Grand Tower, Illinois, along the Mississippi river, she attended a social and an army man asked to accompany her home but she refused. She says he overtook her on the way home. She confessed to having intimate relations with him. She arrived at Canton, Ohio, last March and worked for Mr. Gordon in a grocery store. Donald Settles got acquainted with her in the grocery and after about two weeks they were married, June 16. Settles had been in the navy and had taken a railroad job at Canton.

It seems that Settles did not become suspicious that he was not the father of the child until recently, as his wife had not confided in him at the time they were married. The child, born last Wednesday night, was a full-term, fully developed and healthy babe. No medicine had been left by the doctor for the child and so far as evidence has been learned the lysol, to be used for disinfectant purposes, was the only form of poison in the house. The lysol bottle had been shifted by some one from the dresser drawer to the mantel.

While the evidence gleaned thus far is largely circumstantial it is not likely that further confessions may be secured which will help to clear up the mystery.

NO TRUTH IN THE RUMORED WOUNDING OF LEON TROTZKY

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Rumors that a revolt has broken out at Petrograd and elsewhere in Russia and that Leon Trotsky, minister for war in the soviet government has been wounded are both false, said a Moscow dispatch printed today by The Daily Herald.

The Daily Herald is the official organ of the British Labor party and is sympathetic to the Bolshevik cause.

FAIR DEAL FOR ILLEGITIMATE CHILD IS OBJECT OF CAMPAIGN BEING WAGED BY GOVERNMENT DEPT. OF LABOR

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—A square deal for the nameless baby.

This is the slogan of a nation wide campaign being waged by the government thru the children's bureau of the department of labor.

The forty-eight states are asked to adopt uniform legislation wiping from their statutes "illegitimate child" for children born out of wedlock, by giving it the same legal claim to the father's name and support and the same rights of inheritance as belong to children of lawful marriages.

Miss Julia Lundberg, director of social welfare of the children's bureau today declared that 32,100 illegitimate white babies are born in the United States every year and 70 per cent of these innocents die within the first year of their lives from lack of care.

"It is time justice was done the nameless children," said Miss Lundberg.

"We permit a slaughter of the innocents when we close our eyes to the fact that 70 per cent of the baby outcasts made to suffer for the sins of their parents die from neglect."

"Infant mortality statistics are an index not merely of the number of infants who fail to survive their first year, but of the conditions surrounding infancy and early childhood."

"The significance of the infant mortality rate is not alone in the sacrifice of infant life but of even greater social importance are the impaired physical development hardships and social handicap likely to be the lot of many who survive. The unfavorable conditions surrounding children born out of wedlock are clearly shown by the fact that infant mortality among them is invariably found to be in excess of the mortality among infants born in wedlock."

"The shocking conditions disclosed by an analysis of infant mortality statistics are indicated in figures secured in the study of illegitimate birth in Boston and Baltimore. In Boston it was found that in one year the mortality rate among children of legitimate birth was 95 while infants born out of wedlock was at the rate of 281 per 1000. In other words the mortality rate among children of illegitimate birth was three times greater than among children born in wedlock."

"In Baltimore it was found, white legitimate children died at the rate of 95.9 while the infant mortality of white children of illegitimate birth was 315.5 or 3.3 times as great."

The surveys disclosed a startling number of married men among fathers of illegitimate children, Miss Lundberg said.

In one district, two-thirds of the fathers were found to be married men.

Sentiment has ruled largely in the treatment of the problem of illegitimate births in the United States with the result that the emphasis has been placed on saving the mother from social consequences, said Miss Lundberg.

RUSSIAN-POLISH ARMISTICE TERMS ARE AGREED UPON

BULLETIN
LONDON, Oct. 6.—Soviet Russia and Finland have signed a treaty of peace at Dorpat, said a wireless dispatch from Moscow today.

LONDON, Oct. 6.—An armistice protocol was signed by the Russian-Polish peace envoys at Riga at 7:30 o'clock Tuesday night, said a Warsaw dispatch to The Daily Express today.

A general agreement was reached by the Poles and Russians on all the main points preliminary to peace negotiations.

The actual armistice, which will bring hostilities on the Russo-Polish battle front to an end after more than seven months of violent and continuous warfare, probably will be signed on Friday. The protocol was in the form of a preliminary agreement on both sides to accept conditions which will govern the actual truce.

It is reported from Berlin that both General Brusiloff and M. Tschitcherine, commissioner for foreign affairs in the soviet government have gone to Riga.

If the present plans are carried out, fighting between Lithuania and western Ukraine will end by Sunday.

MAYOR TAKES HAND IN HAZING PRANKS AT THE HIGH SCHOOL

In response to complaints from parents of high school students, Mayor Tish has given assurance that the police department will co-operate with school officials in eliminating the dangerous features of hazing which is said to have been going on at the high school during the past few weeks.

Mayor Tish has written a letter to Supt. O. B. Clifton calling attention to complaints received from parents and asking that rigid steps be taken to break up the hazing practice.

Two of the boys who are said to have been mixed up in the hazing pranks appeared before the mayor and were told that the practice must stop. One mother wrote to the mayor calling attention to the danger connected with the hazing of boys and a father of another student called on the mayor with reference to the matter.

It was stated that one of the boys has been carrying a gun to protect himself against the crowd. Hazards. Should there be further outbreaks of the hazing custom, arrests will probably be made.

According to information obtained by Mayor Tish the participants in the hazing are mostly members of the Sophomore class and the Freshmen are the victims of the pranks.

COX WILL LAUNCH NEXT VOTE DRIVE ACROSS THE OHIO

Will Invade Dark and Bloody Ground Where He Will Spring Another Campaign Surprise

By H. L. Rogers, L. N. S. staff Cpt. COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 6.—Having spent the day cleaning up executive business here, Gov. James M. Cox will leave this afternoon for Kentucky where he will begin the second phase of his drive for votes which will continue until November.

That the Governor still has some of his "best cards up his sleeve" was intimated by friends who have been talking with the candidate at Trails End during the past three days.

Ed H. Moore and George White, Democratic National Chairman, said today "interesting developments" might be expected before the campaign is a week older. Just what these developments would be they declined to state.

The Governor was much improved by his three days rest and his voice, which has been husky for the past two weeks, was practically normal.

The tour which Gov. Cox is now embarking on will take him into the states of Kentucky, Tennessee, Missouri, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, New York, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, New Jersey, Maryland and probably West Virginia. Though Ed Moore and George White disparage reports that Republicans have any chance of breaking the "solid south," the Kentucky stumping trip is taken to mean that the Governor will leave no stone unturned to prevent Republican inroads.

I will speak every week day from now until election time and to as many people as can be brought together. The Gov. declared today.

"Wherever folks are, we have mission and it is simply a matter of getting the message to them every person who has the cause of the league of Nations properly expounded is for it."

With about the usual opening-day crowd the county fair opened in all its glory Wednesday. During the morning it looked as tho the attendance would be a little light but by noon the fair ground was thickly populated and automobiles were pouring into the city from all points of the compass. Rising temperature is the weather forecast for Thursday and it's a safe bet that the crowd will be enormous.

Judging in some of the departments started Tuesday and much of it had been completed Wednesday afternoon. The race track drew a big percentage of the crowd Wednesday, the 2:24 pace, the 2:21 trot and the events.

FINED FOR SPEEDING
Benjamin Roderick, driver of the Bon Ton bakery truck, pleaded guilty to driving beyond the speed limit Wednesday morning and was fined $5.00 by Mayor Tish.

HARDING LEAVES ON LARGEST SPEAKING TOUR OF CAMPAIGN

Will Hit Cox's Trail In the Midwest and Dip Down Into Oklahoma and Missouri

MARION, Oct. 6.—Senator Warren G. Harding left Marion today on the longest speaking trip which he probably will engage in during the campaign.

The trip is a five-day swing that will take him thru half a dozen middle western states and dip down into Oklahoma and Missouri, two states which the Republican campaign managers claim but which are doubtful enough to be termed "pivotal."

In each of them there is a hot Senatorial contest. Senator Harding's first speech of importance on the trip will be made tomorrow at Des Moines, when he will deal with the league of nations in reply to President Wilson's recent appeal, in its behalf. He will speak at Omaha tomorrow night and from there swing over into Missouri for speeches at Kansas City and St. Joseph. Saturday will see him in Oklahoma. Senator Harding was accompanied today by Mrs. Harding and Harry M. Daugherty, his personal campaign manager.

Headquarters attaches and newspaper correspondents made up the rest of the party.

From Marion the Harding Special was scheduled to go direct to Chicago today, the route leading across northern Indiana, where some rear end speeches probably will be made.

Chicago will be reached at 5:40 o'clock. The Senator will dine there, hold a number of conferences with western headquarters officials and leave at 10 p. m. for Des Moines, arriving there early Thursday morning.

Seven minute stops will be made at Huntington and at Hammond.

The Harding itinerary calls for Des Moines at 8 a. m. The Senator will speak in the Coliseum at 10:30 o'clock.

BOY SCOUTS TO CO-OPERATE WITH CITY OFFICIALS

The Boy Scouts are going to play an important part in municipal affairs hereafter. Mayor Tish has designated their organization as the city's official information bureau during fair week. They will be on the streets and at the fair grounds ready to furnish all kinds of information and people, especially strangers, are urged to make their wants known to the Scouts. They will be on duty at the Red Cross tent, the Y. W. C. A. and at several stands.

The mayor has also requested them to keep tabs on fire hazards, bad places in the streets, rubbish in alleys etc., and make reports. They are also expected to report any person they see intoxicated or guilty of reckless driving, etc.

ASKS AUTHORITY TO SELL PROPERTY

Rufus Olinger, executor of the estate of Mary Olinger, has filed a petition in probate court against Isiah Olinger and others, asking for an order to sell the real estate and chattels, not specifically bequeathed or devised in the will and that the widower, Isiah Olinger, be barred from any right or claim to the estate.

The executor alleges that the estate consists of 80 acres in Crawford, appraised at $5,000, and personal property valued at $2,316.95; that the widower is not entitled to dower or other allowance by reason of a separate agreement whereby they agreed to live separate and apart during the remainder of their lives; that after a few specific legacies the will provides that the remainder be equally divided among the six children. It provided that one of the children should remain on the farm and provide a home for Mrs. Olinger's daughter, Helen, and two sons, Paul and Lester, but that none of the children desire to live on the farm and the executor is unable to let it at a reasonable price. He therefore asks authority to sell the real estate and chattels. Wilkin, Farnsell & Fisher are attorneys for the executor.

IS OPERATED UPON

Harold Milligan the 12 year old son of Mrs. James Milligan, Adams-st. underwent a major operation Wednesday at the City hospital. The operation was performed by Dr. J. D. Lower and Dr. Jesse McMillan.

Several times during the game which was witnessed by a crowd estimated as slightly larger than that of Tuesday, the Indians had Grimes in touchy situations but on each occasion he wriggled out by pitching wonderful ball.

In the seventh and again in the eighth the Indians had the bases full but there were two down both times when the third man "got on" and Grimes showed his nerve by sticking the ball squarely over the plate with a hop on it that eluded the Cleveland bats.

Crack fielding by both teams was a feature again today. Tris Speaker made another wonderful catch when he robbed Kilduff of a sure double in the fourth inning.

Zach Wheat and Tommy Griffith contributed sensational catches to the afternoon score.

Interpreting The Bible

IF churches would cease passing out the Bible piecemeal as an infallible book and use it as a collection of the world's best literature written by men for men, more people would read it and eventually would redeem it from "an excellent state of preservation on the library table" says the Rev. Augustus P. Record of Detroit, Mich., author of a book about to be issued by the American Unitarian Association setting forth the beliefs of that church today as a part of a program for church extension in this country.

This book, while containing nothing new concerning the Unitarian belief, is well written and extremely readable. A few paragraphs taken from it will give an insight into its character and the author's style.

"It would be difficult to find a more glaring inconsistency," says Mr. Record, "than that between the world's estimate of the Bible and its ignorance of the Bible. It is a book which is found on the pulpit of every Christian church. It is to be seen, often in an excellent state of preservation, in almost every Christian home. It is the chief text-book in our schools of religious education. Lists of the world's best literature, coming from the most divergent sources give it first place. It has been printed in more languages and circulated in more lands than any other book."

"And yet, over against these facts, we find the most colossal ignorance of its character and contents. There are multitudes of people who are amazed when told that it is not a book at all, but a collection of books, and that its nearest analogy today is not some religious or theological treatise but one of the many libraries of the world's best literature."

"As to the authorship and dates of the various books of which it is composed, or the growth of its several canons or groups, or its interpretations in the light of present day criticism, the great masses of men and women are hopelessly uninformed."

"This is due to the fact that the traditional conception of the Bible and the conventional methods of Bible study have alienated the great majority of thinking people. No arguments based upon intellectual or moral considerations have any weight if opposed to one solitary proof text."

"Passages are wrested from their context and twisted in their meaning for the purpose of supporting theological statements which often are irrational and sometimes repugnant to the moral sense. If compelled to choose between the Bible as everywhere the word of God and no Bible at all, one's choice would be no Bible at all."

"The above method of interpretation is a heritage from the time when Christianity was emancipating itself. The Protestant Reformation repudiated one authority only to submit themselves to another. In place of a divinely instituted church they installed a divinely inspired book."

"Higher criticism has been denounced as hostile to the Bible and to religion. It is this which has made the Bible intelligible and helpful to modern men and women. Without it, it would long since have been relegated to oblivion by all who have emancipated themselves from the fetters of credulity and superstition."

"Higher criticism has destroyed not the Scriptures, not theology, not religion, but only a wrong interpretation of the Scriptures, a narrow conception of theology, and the pagan features of religion."

"The Unitarian conception of the Bible rests squarely upon the results of these higher critics. We no longer regard the Bible as supernaturally inspired, as the infallible word of God. We no longer turn to it with the expectation of finding precise directions as to our conduct in all possible emergencies."

"And yet this modern attitude does not lessen our reverence or esteem for the book itself. The fact that it contains historical inaccuracies and verbal ambiguities does not make it less worthy as a medium for revelation of the divine will. Because of the lofty character of its moral and religious teaching and the light it throws upon the origin and the character of the best religion the world has yet known, we cherish a reverence for it which we cherish for no other book."

"Interpreted as the infallible word of God, there is no book which can so fetter the intellect and retard the moral and spiritual development of the race. Interpreted as the fallible utterance of men it is still profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction and for instruction in righteousness."

New York Day-By-Day

By O. O. MCINTYRE

NEW YORK, Oct. 6 — I was invited to dine at a swell house on Park. Where the plush carpets make you feel like you were stepping on a cat. And the host was large and rosy like a Squire. And always beaming. And I got off in a corner. To hide myself away. And the ladies came laden with perfume. And all were very stout. And the men all plump. And I'm so skinny. That I looked like a young picked chicken. And I never said a word. Just sat there quietly. Wondering how many forks. And how many spoons. Would be at my plate. Just to confuse me. And they had cocktails. And were getting lively. And there was one fellow. Who was the life of the party. The little ray of sunshine. And after a long time. He would look at me. And I would look away. And then he caught my eye. And yelled over to me. "Another ruse story." "From you and out you go!" And everybody snickered. And I got a little red.

And then a little green. And all through the dinner I was afraid to eat. Because when I'm excited. My Adam's Apple races. And I always choke. And I knew that smart aleck. Would make a snappy quip. And finally I got away. And went up a side street. Into a little place. Where they eat pie. With their knives. And savor their coffee.

FIVE CASUALTIES ON BOARD WARSHIP

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—One man was lost and one officer and four men injured while the United States destroyer Goldsborough was crossing a sand bar outward bound from Tampa September 30, the navy department announced today. WALT MASON GEORGE THE GREAT

This George of England is a king whose ways are most endearing, for now he kicks like everything at greedy profiteering. Some time ago Queen Mary said, "I've through the palace capered, and certain rooms need painting red, the walls should be repainted. Most any time some royal nobles may come around week-ending, and they would think that shiftless swabs to housework were attending." Said George, whose head began to throb, "If you'll but cease your clangors, I'll have the lord high thingumbob call in the paperhangers." The honest British workmen came, prepared to paint and putty, they named the wages they would claim, and George said, "You are nutty, there is no sense in such a price as you are now demanding; to you a pitcher full of ice, with royal grace, in handling. Because some thrifless things have hung the coin with real distressing, you think that George may be stung, but you are poor at guessing. I'll paint the palace all alone with princely vim and vigor, before I'll pay you men, a bone above a righteous figure." The royal shack is punk in fact, offending all who scan it, and Mary tends the riot act, but George is firm as granite. He says to her, "Out dark abode will shabby be for ages, unless some lads come up the road who'll work for decent wages."

Nobody thinks anything now of going away on a trip

THE railroads were partly responsible. But it wasn't until the automobile reached its present state of development that the old barriers against travel were finally broken down.

More people own automobiles today than ever thought of owning a horse and buggy in the old days.

That's because the cost of motoring has been brought within reach of the average citizen's pocketbook.

We look upon it as part of our job to keep it there. If it weren't for the trade of the man with the medium priced car there wouldn't be much in this tire business for us.

The less a man has to spend on motoring, the more important it is that his tires should be of first quality.

Any tire is not good enough for the small car owner. He wants a tire that will give him just as much for his money in the small size as the big car man gets for his money in the large size.

In thinking over what kind of tires we would represent in this community we tried to put ourselves in the place of the car owner. And we believe we hit it exactly when we selected U. S. Tires.

Pine Cliff

By JESSIE E. SHERWIN
(A 1926 Western Newspaper Union)

"All right and title," repeated Wilbur Deane after the lawyer who had informed him that he was a legatee to a small portion of the estate of Peter Groll. "That means that I own a house and lot at—what's the name of the outlandish place?"

"Pine Cliff, but 'a house and lot' scarcely describes the benediction. In the first place it is remote. Fish and game abound, mostly nothing else. It is in the wildest part of Wisconsin, the favored haire of the sportsman. A rough lumber shack is the general residence amid burned-over stumps and primeval forest."

"Well, I need a change and I think I will go up there and look over my inheritance."

"There is your deed," remarked the lawyer, handing Deane an envelope. "You have simply to record it. I think your uncle told me that the last time he visited Pine Cliff, he made arrangements to allow an old trapper and his child to occupy the place for a nominal rental, but that is only a verbal lease from season to season."

"Very good," smiled Deane, indulging in visions of bachelor housekeeping, of free deer meat, wild honey and choice game, and nightfall saw him on the train bound north on his experimental journey. It was not a pleasant one, except for a few hundred miles. Then came belated connections, a final fifty miles in an emigrant coach, twenty more in a broken down wagon over a corduroy roadway and at dusk he reached what there was of Crosscut. There was a block structure labeled "Hotel," half a score of lumber camp cabins and a general store and postoffice combined. It was after a night of sweltering upon a homemade cot without a mattress or covering, that Deane awoke the next morning to hire a guide who would pilot him to Pine Cliff, better known as "Old Dayton's place."

"Why that?" inquired Deane, seeking enlightenment.

"Oh, Jacob Dayton and his daughter have lived there for five years and the original owner seems to have forgotten all about it," was the explanation.

"Yes, I heard the tenant had a child," remarked Deane.

"A child? She's grown up into a good deal of a smart, chipper young lady since she came here. Why didn't you notify them you were coming? They meet most of the vacationers here and drive them in their rig whenever they wish to camp along Bascombe river."

Deane viewed the only piece of real estate he had ever owned in a listless way. The house was intensely ugly looking, the few acres about it covered with stumps and rocks. One token of color and beauty attracted where a brief reach of hollyhocks and wild rose showed. Deane paid the guide his charge and crossed the creek on boulders. As he approached the house a tall, pretty girl, seemingly 18, came to the doorway. It was a pleasure to gaze upon the only womanly creature Deane had seen passing over some two hundred miles. She wore a neatly fitting calico dress and daintily decorated moccasins, and her delicate hands and perfectly arranged wealth of curling brown hair might have aroused the envy of some exclusive devotee of fashion. There was a winning grace in her smile and the bend of her head. Deane exerted himself to appear as a thoughtful gentleman extending full consideration to a young lady entitled to the completest courteous attention. In a few well-chosen words he revealed his identity and the object of his visit.

"Father will be here soon," said Erna Dayton. "We have wondered that no one has been here to see about the place through the years and we were thinking of removing to the city. You see, father and I have made the best of our lot, and he is getting old. This is my work," and inviting Deane inside, she indicated a table where a mass of feathers and some fish hooks and wire showed.

"This is my work and has been for some time," she explained. "There is a chicken farm across country twenty miles and its owner furnishes me with my feather supply. I made a few baits for a fishing party some time ago and seemed to have invented a trout bait as to fineness and color with which they were very successful. Since then these rich anglers who visit here seem to think they cannot do without my special invention, and some of them spread the news among the club members in several large cities and I have had a lot of orders as a result. Then too, a sporting goods house in Chicago has written me, asking if I am in a position to supply them."

It was a pleasure for Deane to cooperate with this wildflower so sweet and innocent, and yet so fully imbued with the commercial instinct. He remained as a boarder at the place for a month and then returned to the city as Erna Dayton's envoy. Just as winter came on father and daughter were comfortably settled in a nice flat, a portion of which was used as a work room where Erna employed a score of girls assisting her in making the trout flies. She had the feathers shipped from the Wisconsin chicken farm, availing that they were especially adapted to her purpose.

With the following spring when the city trade was supplied for the season, Deane, his bride and her father went up to the renovated old shack at Pine Cliff to enjoy the beauty and solitude of a restful environment that would always be dear to them.

Why He Resigned.

"My dear, I would do anything in the world for you," he said. "Would you let me drive your car all by myself?" she asked innocent-like. But that was too much, and he hung his head and soon it was all over between them.—Buffalo Commercial.

JUDGMENT OF AMERICAN EXPERTS ON WORLD FINANCE VINDICATED SINCE THE BRUSSELS CONFERENCE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 6.—Criticism from semi-official quarters in France, aimed at Roland Boyden, American "observer" at the Brussels financial conference, for the latter's bold demand that allied financiers get busy and remedy glaring faults in their fiscal systems, instead of looking to America for more loans, was not credited at the treasury department today as reflecting the attitude of the French ministry of finance.

Higher government officials generally view this comment as emanating from circles classed as visionary, the element most responsible for retarding the economic recovery of France. Commissioner Boyden, it is authoritatively said, has the utmost support from Secretary of the Treasury Houston in the position he has outlined to the Brussels delegates. Secretary Houston, it was said, has supreme confidence in Mr. Boyden's ability and judgment. No notice will be taken officially by the treasury department of the French criticism. The treasury today found ample vindication for Mr. Boyden's course in the findings announced as the joint conclusion of leading financial authorities in allied countries, and just promulgated under the auspices of the international secretary of the league of nations. An official copy of this document reporting results of a comprehensive study of financial conditions abroad, directed by the league of nations has been transmitted to Secretary of the Treasury Houston and to Governor Harding of the federal reserve board. The league document disclosed the following as some of the outstanding factors in the present foreign financial situation: All currencies have depreciated in terms of commodities. Neutral countries have not been compelled to endure any of the financial and economic ills which have fallen upon belligerents. Most currencies have depreciated in terms of gold, and gold itself has depreciated in terms of commodities.

A very remarkable relation is found to exist by the league's investigation between the expansion of currencies and the rise of commodities. Discussing unstable currency, the league's findings are as follows:

"The effect of the instability of currency values upon internal trade and industry is serious enough but the effect on internal trade is perhaps still greater and more harmful."

"International trade by means of barter would be an impossibility. It can only be conducted with the assistance not only of money but of credit, but the use of credit involves time bargains in money. On the balance of all sales and purchases a country grants credit to foreigners. Either the creditors or debtors must run an exchange risk. Neither by the clearance of spot transactions nor by sales and purchases of forward exchange can bankers eliminate this risk."

A legislative reorganization of currencies might prove to be premature, is the league's conclusion. Summing up its findings it is asserted:

"It still remains to be determined what the fundamental basis of the new systems shall be."

"A universal gold standard with gold currencies of the pre-war British type is generally regarded as impracticable. The way for universal or all but universal adoption of the gold standard has not yet been prepared by either business men or economists. Still less have they considered how, under future conditions, reasonable stability is to be given to the value of gold or of such other single or multiple standard, as it may be decided to adopt. The problem of currency, the question of credit is complementary. It is perhaps by international cooperation alone that we can now hope to stay the breakdown of the currency system and credit which over large areas is developing into a disaster of first magnitude."

LOCAL FOOTBALL TEAMS SKIRMISH

The Belvedere football squad and the C. H. S. eleven showed good form at the Fairlawn gridiron Tuesday evening. The clubmen were whipped into form by Coach Russell Milligan. Milligan says the team will be prepared to meet the Mt. Vernon eleven on October 10 at Mt. Vernon and will also be in excellent shape to clash with the Newark squad, October 17 at the Fairlawn park. The Belvedere boys are of the 150 pound class. The Coshocton high school boys under Coach Karsch have the strongest high school team in years. The boys are full of the gridiron "pep" and they intend to show it when they face the Dover squad at Fairlawn park Saturday afternoon. The team is in first class shape.

Coshocton High won from Zanesville High last Saturday at Fairlawn park by the score of 20 to 0. The admission for Saturday's game between Coshocton and Dover will be 35 cents. The game will start at 2:30.

"KEEP MOVING" IS FULL OF RHYTHM, MUSIC, AND LEVITY

The Billy Allen Stock Co. Tuesday evening again pleased the theatregoers at the Sixth-st theatre, this time with the big extravaganza revue "Keep Moving." The playhouse was comfortably filled. The two act musical comedy was enthusiastically received. The audience showed more appreciation than on Monday night. Hal Kiter as Joseph Jasper Jingles, an insurance agent and proprietor of the Antique Shop was again the headliner of the show. The plot of the show was made stronger with the assistance of Edward Ladd as leading man in the role of Harry Blake, Jingles' brother-in-law; Marion Grey, as Dardanelle, the living statue and Caro Barill as Mrs. Jingles. Each of these actors and actresses played their parts well and won added popularity.

Tom Whalen as Henry Ausberry, the collector of antiques and Gus Hogan as Harry's pal were well liked.

Cholly Stutz, Leona Marble, Myrtle Hoffman and the Billy Allen beauty chorus pleased the audience Tuesday evening. The Beauty chorus was well represented. They took active part during the show and their songs and dances pleased.

The quartet composed of Messrs. Stutz, Blew, Lator and Whalen provided thrilling harmony.

Wednesday evening's bill is "Too Much Married." This play is rated as one of Billy Allen's best productions.

Life's Preparation for Death. Life is more important than death. In fact, the work of death can only be safely done in life. The practical truth is that which touches us at once, the most sober and solemn view of life, that every single thing we do is actually making death either harder or easier.—Faber.

FOR SKIN TORTURES

Zemo, the Clean, Antiseptic Liquid, Just What You Need. Is Not Greasy

Don't worry about eczema or other skin troubles. You can have a clear, healthy skin by using Zemo, obtained at any drug store for 35c, or extra large bottle at $1.00.

Zemo generally removes pimples, blackheads, blotches, eczema and ringworm and makes the skin clear and healthy. Zemo is a clean, penetrating, antiseptic liquid, neither sticky nor greasy and stains nothing. It is easily applied and costs a mere trifle for each application. It is always dependable.

In skin troubles, ordinary soaps are irritating and liable to aggravate the condition. Use Zemo soap. It is antiseptic, soothing, and hastens the process of healing.

TO SELL REAL ESTATE

The second suit to settle matters in connection with the estate of Joseph N. Wood has been filed in common pleas court by the executor, L. N. Staats. The executor asks authority to sell the part of lot 413 Coshocton devised to Joseph G. Wood. A transcript from Justice McDermott's court has been filed in common pleas court in the case of L. N. Staats vs. Sarah M. Wood for $50 for services in assisting in the purchase of Pauline V. Elliott's interest in the farm.

Cradle Boards.

There are nine different kinds of cradle boards used by the various tribes of North American Indians. The Eskimos did not use such a board. The baby was wrapped in the hood of the mother's fur coat. In the most southern tribes the baby was merely bound to the mother's back by a strip of cloth long enough to hold it.

Symbol of Holy Roman Empire.

The double-headed eagle of the Holy Roman empire was sometimes crowned and sometimes bore the nimbus upon it. The dual heads represented domination over the east and the west and came to be used in the coat of arms of both Austria and Russia.

OHIO WOMAN TO RUN FOR JUDGE

Florence Ellenwood Allen, at present assistant prosecuting attorney of Cuyahoga county, Ohio, is running for a seat on the common pleas bench. She has the distinction of being endorsed by every important woman's club in Cleveland, despite the fact that most of the clubs are non-partisan organizations. In addition to this the Democratic party and the Republican women's organizations have also endorsed her nomination.

Pupils Attack Teacher

TILTONVILLE, Ohio, Oct. 6.—Miss Elizabeth Kugler, teacher of the Jackson school, on the Ohio River hills on the edge of the town, was attacked by pupils during an uprising among the children.

The Bolshevik attitude was assumed when the teacher attempted to apply disciplinary measures to several pupils. Miss Kugler is said to have been severely injured.

Worked for One.

In a little settlement upstate a number of the property owners had been talking about incorporating and making a town. So they called a mass meeting for the people to voice their opinions. Only one man opposed it. He said: "Gentlemen, I am not in for making a corporation of this place. My reason is this: I worked for one of them corporations once."—Indianapolis News.

Life's Best Tasks.

Life calls upon us in all the place of men and women in the ranks of courageous world workers—gives us man-sized jobs in the service of our fellow men. Every week turning aside from these tasks is tantamount to our own self-respect. If we shrink because the work is hard, we forfeit our own respect and that of everyone who knows us.—Orison Sweet Marden in Chicago News.

Men Who Win Life's Prizes.

The big places in all walks of life today go to the men of ideas, the men who are able to think constructively, and from time immemorial the great thinkers have been the well-read men—the men who have profited by the experience of those who went before them.

The world's largest user of the purest and best maple sugar offers you the new Karo Maple

A rare and delicious syrup at a moderate price. Don't worry about the high price of maple syrup. Of special interest to every mother

When you wonder how the new Karo Maple gets its delicious tang of rich maple syrup remember—

The makers of Karo Maple use annually over a thousand tons of the purest and best flavored maple sugar from the finest maple groves in Vermont and Canada.

This is one reason why over five million cans of Karo Maple were purchased by American housewives last year.

This is a greater sale, by far, than any kind of maple syrup offered.

The moderate price of Karo Maple is also an attraction—it costs less than any other syrup of approaching quality and flavor.

Go to your grocer today and get a can of Karo Maple, in the GREEN CAN.

Compare it for price and flavor with other maple syrups. If you are not satisfied your grocer will give your money back.

TOLEDO BUSINESS MEN DETERMINED TO PUNISH POLICE

TOLEDO, Oct. 5.—That there will be no let-up in their activities until the Toledo police department is entirely cleaned of its inefficient members was the statement of local business men today.

"We have started this movement to purge Toledo's safety department and we are not going to stop until we eradicate the rotten members, even if it includes the mayor, safety director and chief of police," said a spokesman for the Rotary, Kiwanis, Exchange and Lion clubs today.

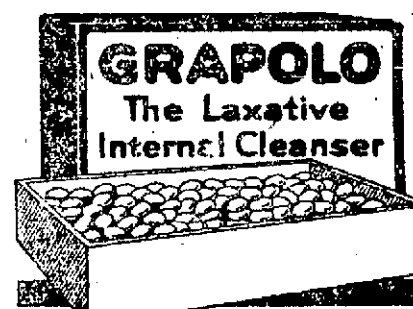

Inspector of Detectives William Deleahanty, who was suspended by Police Chief Henry J. Herbert Saturday, after the business men of Toledo sent an ultimatum to Mayor Schreiber that he must get "rid of Safety Director Chris Wall and Police Chief Herbert," and his case continued today, when it was brot before the safety director.

Business men think Deleahanty was suspended by Herbert in an effort to appease their demands. "They can not make a 'goat' of Deleahanty," said one of the leaders. Deleahanty has stated he will unbosom himself in a few days concerning the inner workings of the police department, the activities of which have been severely criticized by all classes. He intimates that he can show why gambling and vice have been permitted to flourish openly, and places the responsibility on the chief of police.

The federal court today took a hand in the clean up when Marshal Hugh Barley started out to round up property of bandits which police refused to turn over. A replevin action was started against three police officials, Wall, Herbert and Patrolman Richard McKee, in charge of the police property room.

COSHCTON GIRL IS NEXT YOUNGEST CO-ED

A dispatch from Marion, Ohio, Monday stated that Miss Juanita Almdinger of Waldo, Marion-co, is the youngest co-ed in Ohio, according to officials of Ohio Wesleyan university. Miss Alice Snyder, Coshocton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Seth M. Snyder, south Fourth-st, comes in for second honors, she being just three days older than Miss Almdinger. Miss Snyder is a freshman at Ohio Wesleyan.

SUPREME JUSTICES ARE CONFRONTED BY OLD LIQUOR PUZZLE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5.—A conference of the justices of the U. S. supreme court will be held this week to take action on the petition of Elihu Root, and William Guthrie in a hearing of all the decisions affecting the prohibition act, and the Volstead act.

The decision of the court on this petition may bring an end to the controversy over the act. It was filed on ground that the court decisions were not in sufficient detail.

Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, appeared at the court today prepared to oppose re-opening of the case.

Escaped an Operation

There is nothing in the world a woman so much fears as a surgical operation. Often they are necessary, but often not; and many have been avoided by the timely use of that good old-fashioned root and herb remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. If you are suffering from some dread ailment peculiar to your sex, why not profit by the experience of these two women whose letters follow?

These Two Women Saved from Operations.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells they would unfit me entirely for my housework. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was an awful thing to me, with a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped me years before and I decided to try it again. I took five bottles of Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am ready and thankful to swear by your medicine any time. I am forty-four years old and have not had a day's illness of any kind for three years."—Mrs. H. KOENIG, 617 Ellis Blvd, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Sandusky, Ohio.—"After the birth of my baby I had organic trouble. My doctor said it was caused by too heavy lifting and I would have to have an operation. I would not consent to an operation and let it go for over a year, having my sister do my work for me as I was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—said it cured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and they have cured me. Now I do my own housework, washing and ironing and sewing for my family and also do sewing for other people. I still take a bottle of Vegetable Compound every spring for a tonic. I recommend your medicine to others who have troubles similar to mine and you can use my letter if you wish."—Mrs. PAUL PAPERFUSE, 1325 Stone St., Sandusky, Ohio.

Experienced Mothers know the wisdom of assisting nature before Baby's coming

It is natural to think of the expectant mother's influence upon the unborn babe. Her food, her habits, her hygiene, and even the condition of her mind, all have a part in determining the well-being or ill-being of her infant before birth.

No woman awaiting the joys of coming motherhood should allow the days to pass without giving nature a helping hand—because the conditions of pending motherhood, existing as they do, over a protracted period of months, create almost a new state of being for a woman.

Just as she prepares herself for it, so will most favorable conditions prevail when her child is born.

MOTHER'S FRIEND is a balm for the nerves, an intensely penetrating lubricant that softens the muscles, relaxes tension of the delicate organism involved in maternity, and prepares the way for an easier, quicker and practical delivery.

PRESIDENT WILSON WILL ENTER PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN WITH PRONUNCIAMENTOS ON LEAGUE

Major Offensive of Oratorical Forces is Planned For Launching This Week By Democrats—Five Hundred Spellbinders Took the Platform Monday In U. S.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 5. — Democracy's final drive against the forces of the G. O. P., planned as one of the greatest oratorical onsets ever launched by one political party against another in the history of the United States, is scheduled to get under way this week according to word received by Democratic leaders here today.

President Wilson whose strategy includes coming late on the battlefield will lead one division of the army, issuing at moments, by him deemed favorable, pronunciamentos having to do with the league, acting as a sort of self advisor to those called upon to defend the treaty of Versailles.

More than 500 orators scattered throughout the United States took to the hustings yesterday and others will join each day until the balloting commences, according to the reports received here from Senator Pat Harrison in charge of this phase of Gov. Cox's campaign.

One hundred speakers are now campaigning in the state of Ohio alone. Another hundred are at work in Indiana. There will be more in those states next week, party leaders assert.

SALTS FINE FOR ACHING KIDNEYS

We Eat too Much Meat Which Clogs Kidneys, then the Back Hurts

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally, else we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine.

This famous salt is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well-known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.

419 Eggs From 20 Hens In 30 Days

Mr. Dougherty Got This Result In October. Plan is Easily Tried.

"I tried Don Sung and the results were far past my expectations. I got 419 eggs in 30 days from 20 hens while moulted. I think this is wonderful, as they hardly laid at all before." Frank St. Indianapolis.

Mr. Dougherty bought 10 boxes of Don Sung in October and wrote this letter in November. Big profit besides, simply let me and four money will be cheerfully refunded.

Don Sung (Chinese for "egg-laying") is a scientific tonic and conditioner. It is easily given in the feed, improves the hen's health and makes her stronger and more active. It tones up the egg-laying organs, and gets the eggs, no matter how cold or wet the weather.

You can obtain Don Sung from your druggist or poultry remedy dealer, or send $1.00 (including postage) for a bottle by mail. Burrell-Dugger Co., 215 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

WORLDWIDE COAL DEARTH MENACE TO ALL INDUSTRY

Official of National Bank of Commerce Says Only Two Nations Have Adequate Supply.

SUBSTITUTES ARE NOT AVAILABLE

Neither New Fields Nor Fuel Oil Will Solve the Problem at This Time.

Only Great Britain and the United States have reasonable assurance of sufficient coal to operate their industries at capacity during the coming winter, according to Joseph A. Broderick, Vice President of the National Bank of Commerce in New York, and even in these countries, he says, it has been found necessary to take administrative measures to protect domestic needs. Mr. Broderick points out that the threatened coal shortage which has aroused anxiety in New England, Ohio and other sections of the country is merely one aspect of a world-wide condition. Neither shipments from new and remote fields, such as those in Australia, nor the increased use of fuel oil and other substitutes for coal will solve the problem for the present.

"Only two countries of the world, the United States and the United Kingdom, today have reasonable assurance of sufficient coal to operate their industries at capacity during the coming winter," Mr. Broderick says. "In order to attain this security a definite limit has been placed upon the amount of British coal available for export, and in the United States exports have been automatically held in check by measures taken to assure domestic supplies. The fuel problem is the foremost question facing the industry of every country of western Europe, except the United Kingdom. It is also the fore in a number of countries outside Europe, chiefly those countries of South America which have heretofore been dependent on imported coal. In South America the coal shortage has not as seriously affected the national life as is the case with the countries of Europe, chiefly because manufacturing does not constitute the major activity of any South American country.

"The international coal trade is entirely dominated by the United Kingdom, Germany and the United States. In 1913, on the basis of net exports, about 145,000,000 tons of coal, or a little less than one-ninth of the world's output, entered into international commerce, and of this amount 97 per cent came from the three leading exporters. Not only is the coal supply of importing countries now dependent upon the mines of these three countries, but there is no prospect for years to come of important additions from other sources to the amount of coal available for the export market. The recent emphasis placed upon small shipments from new and remote coal fields has been entirely out of proportion to their relation to the issue.

"A similar over-emphasis has also been placed on the proposed use of substitutes. The widespread use of fuel oil in place of coal for the bunkering of steamships was made in part because of the high steam value of oil in relation to weight, and in part to the quickness and convenience with which supplies can be taken on, as compared with the onerous process of filling coal bunkers. A similar replacement of coal by oil has occurred in some other industries, especially for railroad fuel, but the supply of oil is not sufficient to overcome the fuel shortage.

"The scarcity of coal and its high cost are everywhere stimulating plans for the development of water-power. Nevertheless, the production of electricity from water-power necessitates elaborate installations at a time when capital is costly and difficult to secure, and extensive water-power projects require years for completion. Wood and peat age but poor substitutes for coal, and for many uses lignite likewise is highly unsatisfactory. Modern industry has been built on coal, and it is dependent on adequate supplies for its maintenance.

"World production of coal in 1919 is estimated by the United States Geological Survey to have been 1,150,000,000 gross tons, only 10,000,000 tons above the output for 1910, and 170,000,000 tons below the output for 1913, the maximum year thus far. It is not to be concluded, however, because production in 1919 was far below what it might reasonably have been, except for the intervention of war, that the world was last year short of coal nearly to the amount of 600,000,000 tons. The total shortage of coal in the international market is only a small part of the difference between actual production and probable output had the war not occurred, but when measured in terms of the effect on the countries which are suffering this shortage it is acute, and the only hope of meeting it lies in the productive capacity of the United Kingdom, the United States and Germany."

POMERENE AND EDGE TO PROBE COX 1916 FUND

DAYTON, Oct. 6.—Senators Edge and Pomerene, members of the subcommittee of the senatorial investigating committee who are to meet here to continue the inquiry into the contributions to the campaign fund of Gov. Cox in 1916, have engaged a room in the Federal building for the purpose of beginning the hearings in this city tomorrow.

It is believed that the main work of the subcommittee will be to subpoena H. E. Talbot, Sr., and officials of the Dayton Metal Products Co., regarding the charges that the metal company took up a note of $5,000 of Gov. Cox in 1917, when the company was then engaged on war contracts.

Other witnesses will be called, it is understood, in connection with alleged "slush fund" of $37,000 which it is claimed was raised by the friends of Gov. Cox, who were engaged in war work, for the purpose of furthering the candidacy of Cox in Ohio in 1916.

Talbot would make no statement today regarding the investigation. He has just returned from a hunting trip which he was engaged at the time he was called by the investigation committee. Col. E. A. Deeds and C. F. Kettering closely associated with Talbot in aviation work during the war, also expecting to be called in the hearings of the subcommittee, also made no comment upon the work of the committee.

GLASS CO. TEAM TO MAKE STRONG BID FOR PENNANT

The Glass factory team may yet win the Industrial league pennant. The American Art Works may forfeit their two games to them and Hunt-Crawford-Beach may do likewise. Providing these three games are forfeited to the Glass house and the Glove factory forfeit an unplayed game to the Pottery, the teams will be tied and will have to play off the tie Saturday afternoon to decide the winner.

The Tyndal players, it was said, will not forfeit a game to the Pottery, asserting they can win it and with it a good chance at the pennant.

ATTENDS FUNERAL

Mrs. J. R. Clark, 310 McClain-av., returned home Wednesday from Cleveland after attending the funeral services for her granddaughter, Edith Marie Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Clark. The infant was three and one-half weeks old. The child's death occurred at the home of the parents, Tuesday. Mr. Clark was formerly a resident of Coshocton-co.

AFRAID TO LEAVE HER MOTHER ALONE

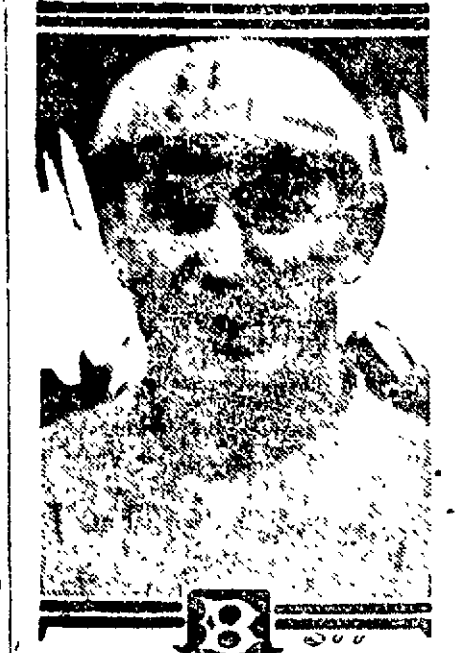

Been virtually an invalid for months, suffering from rheumatism, dizzy spells, constipation and stomach disorders. This 81 year old lady is now able to get around the house and feels fine since taking Dreo.

"It is simply marvelous to see how my mother has improved under the Dreo treatment," said Mrs. May J. Smith, of 110 Lord St., Marietta, O. "She has been almost an invalid for months and I was afraid to leave her alone in the room. Mother is 81 years old and pretty feeble. She had been suffering from rheumatism, backache and a sluggish liver, along with other aches and pains. She would get very dizzy which made everything seem like it was spinning around. Her bowels were badly constipated, and her nerves were weak. She often had pains in her stomach and that full bloated feeling after meals."

"She hadn't been taking Dreo very long until she could tell the difference in her feelings, and now, after using Dreo for some time, it is remarkable to see her getting around the house and wanting to help do things. Her strength has been greatly increased; bowels act regularly and she never has a dizzy spell nor a backache. Dreo is certainly fine medicine."

Dreo has proven a great tonic and strength producer for many people. It purifies the blood, increases the appetite, aids digestion, overcomes constipation and restores a lazy liver. All druggists now sell Dreo and it is being especially introduced in Coshocton by Page & Lorenz' drug store.

"ITS WONDERFUL" SAYS THIS WOMAN

Feels Like Praising Tanlac to Skies After What It Has Done For Her

"I have just finished my second bottle of Tanlac and am already rid of troubles that bothered me for three years," said Mrs. Chas. Grounds, of 111 Fifteenth-st., Ashland, Ky.

"I could scarcely eat anything without suffering from indigestion. After every meal I had a heavy feeling in the pit of my stomach, with a smothering sensation and violent palpitation of the heart. These troubles got so much worse at night I often had to get up and walk the floor in order to breathe. I was so nervous that a good night's sleep. My kidneys bothered me and I had severe pains."

In my back and sides. I was badly constipated and subject to terrible headaches, in fact I was in such pain nearly all the time I could hardly get around.

"I kept reading and hearing about Tanlac I decided to try it, and now I actually feel like a different woman. I have a splendid appetite and can eat just anything I want and never have any bad after effects. I no longer suffer from constipation or headaches, my kidneys have quit bothering me and my nerves have quieted down. I can now sleep soundly for eight hours or more and wake up feeling fine and full of energy. Tanlac has brought me out so wonderfully I feel like praising it to the skies and I never expect to be without it."

Tanlac is sold in Coshocton by Siegel & Williams and in Warsaw by J. D. Lawson.

BROOKLYN, DEFEATED BUT NOT HUMILIATED, IS DETERMINED TO TURN TABLES ON CLEVELANDERS

NEW YORK, Oct. 6.—No team ever lost less prestige by loss of a first game of a World's series than the Brooklyn National league club did when Stanley Coveleskie tied them into scoreless knots with his four-pronged spitter yesterday.

The reputation of the Dodgers as a game, hustling team did not suffer in the least by this setback. To be sure, it was disheartening to see Uncle Robby's boys feeling back from one bad "break" after another, but Brooklyn supporters do not think the luck will run one way all the time.

Instead of being downhearted over their showing against Coveleskie, the Dodgers are more confident than ever. They figure they have given Speaker's pitching "see" a battle that will keep him on the side lines until after the fourth game, and they do not believe "Spoko" has another pitcher anywhere near as good as him.

In the meanwhile Brooklyn's reserve pitching staff has hardly been touched. Any one of three hurlers who worked yesterday could go in again tomorrow. Marnaux and Cadore could work today, as they made only brief appearances on the slab. Marquard, when he was removed for a pinch hitter was going strong. This is the way Manager Robinson figures it.

He matched three pitchers against Speaker's one best, and the mauling Indians did not make any more hits off the trio than the Dodgers combed from the delivery of Coveleskie, rated as the best spitball pitcher in the American league. And don't forget that "Covey" has rested up several days for this effort, while Jim Bagby and "Duster" Mails, who are the next two Cleveland pitchers in line, were pressed hard and somewhat overworked in the closing days of the American League race when the White Sox were making threatening gestures.

It was evident yesterday that Speaker was ready more than once to lift Coveleskie. One good smashing hit at one of two or three stages of the opening game would have blasted the Pole from his pedestal. Each team made five hits, but Cleveland's bingles were more timely than Brooklyn's and one bob yielded by Marquard developed into a calamity. Coveleskie had some of the Dodgers breaking their backs to gauge the breaks on the ball. No other Cleveland pitcher is likely to duplicate this performance.

Another heavy fact against the Dodgers was the fielding of Speaker, Sewell and Evans. Speaker in particular rendered his pitcher amazing support. The veteran's judgment of wind blown flies was something uncanny. There were a couple of short flies he could not reach, but he caught one that Evans missed and Evans returned the favor some few rounds later by crossing in front of his manager and plucking a base hit out of the air.

In the final analysis Speaker's fielding stands out as a factor fully as important as Coveleskie's pitching. His line string catch off Krueger in the eighth inning was a life saver for the Cleveland pitcher. Had it gone safe Krueger would have owned a double or possibly a triple. Mitchell followed with a single and Olsen a pass so that the damage that might have resulted if Speaker had not retired Krueger may be estimated.

The Dodgers think this play prevented them from tying the score or possibly driving Coveleskie from the box and winning in that late inning. Sewell's part in holding up Coveleskie cannot be undervalued. The rookie's shortstop, who came from the minors only a few weeks ago, was not a bit disconcerted by the hostile crowd. Most of his fielding chances were difficult ones. He took grounders on half bounds; speared liners and in general conducted himself like a seasoned veteran. And he is a "kid" of only 19.

BASEBALL PROBE WILL AWAIT SERIES' END

When Food Desn't Doigest

Give the Stomach a Rational Rest by Proper Aid. Not by Harsh Starvation Methods. Use Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets.

A sour stomach may indicate an acid condition that calls for an alkaline effect.

This you will get from one or two meal. Sour risings, gasiness, a heavy bloated feeling and such distress due to indigestion or dyspepsia are usually only temporary. And yet they may lead to serious disorder. The regular use of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets after meals reflects to a high degree the intelligent selection of preventative measures.

One cannot always select or inspect the quality of food to be eaten nor its method or manner of preparation. But it is possible to avoid the acidity that is so often the result. And it is a far better plan to eat without worry over what may happen. Many physicians recommend these tablets for stomach distress due to indigestion or dyspepsia.

They are sold by all druggists everywhere at 60 cents a box.

Her Weight in Gold

By MURIEL LEE

(© 1930 Western Newspaper Union)

"I'm through!" announced Bruce Atwood with fixed determination.

"I'll stick," asserted his mining partner, Dan Forster.

"Don't blame me, Dan," went on the first almost pathetically, for he and Forster had been close friends. "I have cheerfully invested half of my resources in this Golden Bar proposition to find that I am not adapted for the business. There's gold in the bed of the old Minooka, for we have found it, but it's all guess work as to locating the particular spots where it is massed up in sufficient quantities to pay for taking it out."

"Well, if you haven't the patience to wait until the dams and bins are put in, quit it and no hard feelings. One thing, though, do you intend to draw out your share of the capital now in the bank to cover work contracts I for?"

"Not a penny of it," replied Atwood promptly. "Go the limit on that, Dan. You see, I have only a few thousands left and I'm going to make a new try in real legitimate business. I've got a fair opportunity to do it down in Appleton."

"What line, Bruce?"

"Boots and shoes, an established store. Owner sick and has to sell out. I've got some new ideas as to running such a business. I'll not be content to simply drudge along and make a living. If I can't see a big future in the proposition, I'll sell out and get to the big cities."

Within the week Atwood was sole proprietor of the shoe store in Appleton. He had the place renovated and bought a dazzling electric sign. He spared no money to make the show windows attractive. The opening day was signified by a band concert. Atwood (centralized the district for miles around and on Saturday there was a constant rush of farmers and their families and sales were beyond his fondest anticipations.

The new advertising wrinkle of the week was the setting in place of a handsome weighing scale, capacious and ornate, with a broad alluring dial and everybody was invited to weigh themselves free of charge. Very few passersby ignored the opportunity.

One afternoon Atwood was standing near the door when a young lady and an old gentleman, evidently her father, halted as the former spoke in musical accents. "Oh, papa, I want to weigh myself. I haven't done so since I came home from my visit East."

Atwood came forward and waved his hand toward the scale, receiving a smiling recognition of thanks from the bewitching young lady as she stepped upon the scale platform.

"One hundred and twenty-two pounds," announced Vivian Dalton. "Why, papa, home cooking has increased my weight over six pounds in a week."

"That adds so much more to your value," was the affectionate reply, "worth your weight in gold. The fortunate young man who wins you will have to qualify up to that standard."

"Oh, what a lovely pair of slippers!" exclaimed Vivian, and in her haste to get nearer to the show window her foot caught in the extending top plate of the platform and tore away the heel of her shoe entirely and a part of the sole. She would have fallen only that Atwood caught her. For a fleeting moment he held in his arms this dainty, sweet creature, whose value he estimated even beyond that expressed by her proud and loving parent. She had to come inside and remained seated while the cobbler repaired her disordered footgear and both she and her father expressed their thanks for the prompt and helpful attention.

"I can't forget her," sighed Atwood the next morning. "My manager says her father is the money king in the town. Pretty plain, he indicated that her husband-to-be must have her weight in gold. I'm! One hundred and twenty-two pounds. Why that would be a little fortune. I'll forget her. Probably I'll never see her again. I couldn't match her with silver even in the present state of my finances."

HIS HITTING WAS FEATURE OF GAME AT BROOKLYN TUES. O'NEILL

Steve O'Neill got his start with the famous Minooka Blues. He was born in Minooka, Pa., July 6, 1892. From the famous semi-pro team he went to Elmira in 1910. Connie signed him and sent him, the next season, to Worcester in the New England league. The Indians bought him from Connie Aug. 20, 1911, and he has proved one of the type of stars who shine without frequent moving.

But the next day Miss Dalton came into the store to buy the pretty slippers she had fancied. During the following week she again visited the place to introduce a lady interested in charity for the poor. Would Mr. Atwood contribute a pair of shoes to children of poor families.

"Oh, surely." And more than that, "just bring in the sizes needed as new worthy applicants in need appear." And the radiant smile from Vivian that rewarded his good heartedness fully compensated for his impulsive generosity.

Another month went by and those two met at several local functions. Then Atwood was invited to the Dalton home and was made to feel as a welcome guest.

One day he received a letter from Dan Forster. Golden Bar had paid out rich! Enclosed in the missive was a receipt from the United States mint for Atwood's half of the proceeds of the last clean-up.

"Fortune has smiled on me," he told Mr. Dalton and Vivian, meeting them on the street that afternoon and he showed them the mint receipt. "Gold! We're waiting it down at the Bar. And I've been reckoning—in the pure metal I've got enough and to spare to weight down the scales for over 122 pounds. I was thinking of Miss Dalton's value, you see," he smiled, and Mr. Dalton looked pleasantly interested and pretty Vivian flushed consciously.

WILL OF MRS. J. P. FORBES IS FILED

The will of Maria E. Forbes was filed for probate Tuesday afternoon. The will provides that all the property, both real and personal, shall go to her husband, Jesse P. White-Haired Druggist Sold S. S. S. When a Mere Boy

For Fifty Years It Has Been The Standard Blood Tonic

Whether you happen to be in one of the most modern, up-to-date drug stores of Broadway, or the most remote country store at the forks of the creek, you will find on the shelves a bottle of S. S. S., the reliable old blood tonic, made in Atlanta, of the juices and extracts of medicinal roots gathered from the forests of Georgia and other southern states.

S. S. S. is in the truest sense Nature's remedy. Its formula was obtained by a prominent Georgia family direct from a noted Indian chief, and it was first made by boiling the roots in a washpot. Today it is made in a modern sanitary laboratory, with automatic bottle filling machines, labelers, conveyors, and other devices that are the result of mechanical genius—but the same formula from the same medicinal roots is employed today, as it was when the Indians first made it in their primitive way.

The wonderful tonic properties of this splendid blood purifier have given S. S. S. wide-spread fame, and there is many a white-haired druggist selling this remedy today who has been handling it ever since he has been in business. There is no other proprietary remedy that stands in higher favor with the druggists, because they know that S. S. S. is an honest and thoroughly reliable medicine, and they have seen the good results it has accomplished.

Every bottle of S. S. S. is made in the Atlanta laboratory, but so great is the demand that it is shipped in carload lots to warehouses in San Francisco, Chicago, Baltimore, Columbus, Cincinnati, Houston and St. Louis, to which points more than a hundred carloads have been shipped within the past year.

The record of S. S. S. stands out as one of the signal successes of American business life. It was first placed on the market more than fifty years ago, and each succeeding year has shown a steady growth in its demand. S. S. S. is an honest, reliable remedy, and throughout its career only conservative, bona fide publicity has been permitted, so that its phenomenal growth is the result of merit alone, backed up by intelligent, persistent and aggressive exploitation.

S. S. S. is today recognized as the standard blood purifier and tonic, and is used regularly by those who realize the importance of avoiding disease by the intelligent method of keeping the blood supply always pure and vigorous and healthy.

WOMAN ORDAINED AS MINISTER BY UNANIMOUS VOTE

Mrs. Clemmie Ellis White.

Mrs. Clemmie Ellis White of New York, for the past sixteen years superintendent of the West Side Mission in that city, was ordained into the ministry recently by the unanimous vote of fourteen clergy men sitting in interdenominational council. As practically all denominations bar women from the ministry, Mrs. White, who is secretary of the International Union of Gospel Missions, is one of the pioneers in that field.

6th St. Theatre

Hal Kiter, comedian with Billy Alton's musical Comedy Company at the 6th St. Theatre all this week is as hard working a fun-maker as has ever appeared on the boards here, and he richly deserved the response he got from the audience during the presentation of "Keep Moving." Tuesday night.

The piece itself had a plot, which is getting to be unusual in musical comedy. The story concerned a statue that came to life. Kiter, as usual, was the hero of the offering and his sparkling lines made him a decided hit with the second night audience.

Caro Bulli had further opportunity to turn loose her well trained voice in the piece and there are also some lively vocal numbers with Cholly Stutz and Leona Marble leading the chorus. Marion Grey also deserves credit for her wonderful presentation of the statue that came to life. Kiter, however, held the center of the stage and his songs, "I'm On My Way," "The Argentines, the Portuguese and Greeks," and the "Book Song," brought the house into enthusiastic applause.

Wednesday night the company plays "Too Much Married." There will be a change of program daily this week.

Women Take Poll

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 6.—An interesting sidelight of the right of women to ballot for President is shown in the attitude of the experienced male politician in gracefully stopping back and allowing their wives, sisters and mothers in this city to take the poll of the women voters of both parties.

Whether it is thought that mere man could not convince the average woman that she should express a preference has not been stated by the male worker.

Our pastor remarked in his searching way yesterday that he often fears some members of his flock, if they prayed exactly as they feel, would phrase it this way: Lead us not into temptation, unless the chance is exceptionally good and no one's around.

In Peril

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE

It was a novel yet perilous position, that in which Merrill Page found himself at Lone Prairie. The leading lawyers of a New Mexico border city had sent him to the settlement designated secretly, to visit a certain Lemuel Ward whom he would find slowly dying, take his statement under oath and quietly return with the evidence that would adjust a disputed title to a ranch.

Jem Dymond was the acknowledged leader of an unruly, desperate group at Lone Prairie, and Page was eyed with suspicion when he registered at the one rough-and-ready tavern of the place. He located a little hut where Lemuel Ward was lying in a bed from which he was destined never to arise. Page made sure that he was not observed as he dodged in through the open doorway.

"I am glad you have come," said Ward, as soon as Page revealed his identity. "At times the house has been under the surveillance of Jem Dymond, and I have been practically a prisoner since I threatened to get to the city and see the lawyers."

"I am to take your deposition, as I understand it," said Page.

"Yes, and a deed I've made out, and all there is to do is to sign

LOVE WINS IN MODERN HISTORY'S
GREATEST BATTLE WITH DIPLOMACY

PARIS, Oct. 6.—Modern history's greatest battle between love and diplomacy, involving Prince George of Greece, eldest son of former King Constantine, and Princess Elizabeth of Roumania, had apparently ended today in a victory for love.

Prince George arrived in Bucharest after a secret and circuitous journey from Switzerland to marry the Roumanian princess, the sweetheart of his boyhood. Allied guards were on duty all around the Swiss border under orders to prevent the Greek prince from leaving the country, for the diplomats of the allied countries were determined that the marriage should not take place. Prince George circumvented the sleuths and the diplomats by traveling in disguise.

Opposition to the alliance arose from the alleged pro-Germanism of Prince George. Ever since he was expelled with his father, in 1917, he had been under surveillance of this reported sympathy for the House of Hohenzollern.

Queen Marie, of Roumania, mother of the princess, is in favor of the marriage and is said to have made the plans by which George was able to arrive in Bucharest incognito for the nuptials. She is said to be in favor of an immediate marriage for fear that the diplomats may find some way to prevent it if there is procrastination.

There are two other reasons for the activities of the allied diplomats. They fear that consummation of marriage linking Greece and Roumania would arouse the hostility of Premier Venizelos, of Greece, who has now become one of the most powerful statesmen in Europe. Also, former minister Jonsco of the Roumanian cabinet, is opposed to the match.

Few of the former royal cronies of the Prince would recognize him on his journey from Switzerland. He wore a cloth cap, a cheap sack suit, badly wrinkled, and heavy shoes. He carried a brown paper sack case. It is understood that the trip was made by way of Austria and Hungary.

At Budapest George was joined by his two sisters and Prince Carol, of Roumania, who were to be wedding guests and a valet with a big trunk full of clothing.

Constantine did not attempt to make the journey fearing that the allies would make formal protest to Roumania.

The "headstrong will" of Queen Marie of Roumania, is blamed in Greek government circles for George's secret flight to Bucharest.

Greek officials expressed the belief that Marie intends to seal the marriage at once, perhaps this week, without any announcement of it until after the ceremony.

"The Roumanian legation in Paris did not learn until last night of Prince George's presence at Bucharest. A telegram has been sent asking for official confirmation of reports that the marriage will take place immediately. No reply has been received.

Foolish Fancy.

From a novel: "Fanny was intensely sympathetic; even the loneliness of the goldfish in the parlor saddened her." Sheer waste of sympathy, this. Would the little beggars be continually nagging their tails if they were unhappy? Certainly not. Far from pitying them, we envy them; they can take a trip around the globe whenever they feel like it.—Boston Transcript.

Kind Fate

By AUGUSTUS G. SHERWIN

(©, 1924, Western Newspaper Union.)

A man with a cane, a dog leading him at the end of a rope, slowly, cautiously crossed the road feeling his way, his ear bent at painful tension to catch the merest echo that might indicate danger in his uncertain course. Albin Drake, one-armed only, hastened to guide him safely over the street. The helpless one smiled his gratitude and went his way gropingly.

A bird with a broken wing fluttered down from a tree bough, clumsily dropping rather than flying, secured a stray piece of bread in its bill, and laboriously ascended to its nest by climbing. Its infant brood hungrily welcomed it and the mother bird, proud and triumphant at accomplishing its purpose, crippled as it was, burst forth into a full flood of glorious, triumphant song.

"A double lesson. I'll take it to heart," Albin Drake told himself. There were scars on his face besides the empty sleeve that commemorated the Argonne. He had left the service on the shelf so far as active warfare was concerned, and it was a gloomy outlook ahead. He had given up his position to offer his services for his country, and there was no nook or corner in the old place of employment. For a time the home coming seemed a flowery path. There were arches and wreaths and music for the returned heroes, receptions, newspaper mention, the warm plaudits of friends. Then, as if the public had done its duty, many like himself were allowed to drift. The unit were relegated to forgetfulness.

The brightest spot in the situation was Myrtle Farr. She and Albin had been nothing more than very dear friends when he went overseas, but she had been a faithful correspondent and the cheering, encouraging words she had written him had meant long and love. He had come back to find her orphaned, cast on the world homeless, and his spirits gloomed as he realized that he could offer her no glowing promise of fortune in the present, no assurance of care and support in the future.

Like a broken reed he must seek support from others instead of hoping to be able to take his place in the world as a helper. He felt that he stood in the way of Myrtle by remaining in his home town, for she loyally favored no companionship among the group of young men except his own. She loved him, this he knew, and although he knew that she would willingly meet obscurely and poverty with him if he asked her, he was too much of a man to risk becoming a possible burden to her.

"I have a chance to superintend a small business in Dover," he told Myrtle that evening, "with a prospect of finally securing a share in it."

"You are going away?" voiced Myrtle in a desolate tone.

"I must." There is nothing here for me. People are kind enough, but they do not know where to fit me in to work. Don't look forlorn, Myrtle. You shall hear from me regularly. And I've brought you some mementoes that I want you to keep," and Albin placed a parcel on the table. "They are queer remembrances of the last dash we made at Verdun. A poor fellow, I think he was a Persian, had taken a great fancy to me for some little kindness I showed him, and after he was dead from a terrible wound his captain brought me his kit as a rightful inheritance. There is an oriental prayer rug and an idol of some kind. I learned that he was a young man of some importance in his own country, and I suppose his relatives cherish traditionally such objects as the rug and the idol, but I did not know who or where they were."

Albin went away and the first letter Myrtle received from him was quite encouraging. Albin regretted that he had not a certain comparatively small amount of capital that would purchase an interest in an enterprise in which he could be useful, and where the assurance of a permanent competence was certain.

It was at the end of two months that Albin Drake was greeted with the surprise of his life. Going home he found a young lady awaiting him in the parlor. She was Myrtle Farr. Her eyes aglow with the fervor of some event that had led to her traveling over 200 miles to tell of it to Albin.

"The prayer rug, the idol—Oh, Albin!" she fluttered. "The lonely foreigner you was so good to be, was a member of a noted family in Teheran. When his relatives learned of his death they sent an envoy to secure his body and the rug and the idol that were sacred, treasured relics to them. You had left for home, but they traced you. Yesterday a consular agent came seeking for you, learned of my possession of the relics, and—oh, have I done right? For their possession and as a token of gratitude of his family for your kindness, the agent insisted on leaving for you the sum of $5,000. Now you can buy that share in the business, can't you, Albin?"

"It must be the business," replied Albin. "Half the amount will insure me an interest that will bring me an income for life. Myrtle, dear, you must surmise the dearest wish of my heart. Will you share it with me?"
